Basics Of The EA Examination

An EA is a person who has earned the EA exam and achieved the highest credential awarded by the IRS.

Enrolled Agents are tax professionals who have exhibited special competence in tax matters and are granted unlimited rights to practice before the IRS as the agents or legal representatives of taxpayers.

In this context, “practice before the IRS” means EAs can function and articulate with the IRS on all matters concerning a client’s rights, privileges, and liabilities beneath laws and regulations assisted by the IRS.

Details about the EA examination

The IRS EA exam is a comprehensive three-part test that tax preparers must pass to become an IRS Enrolled Agent. After-tax preparers clear all three Enrolled Agent examinations and satisfy the other prerequisites, the IRS characterizes them with the EA designation.

These three Enrolled Agent tests has 100 multiple-choice questions and are conducted with 3.5-hour testing time.

Part 1
Individuals

Part 2
Businesses

Part 3
Representation Practices and Procedures

3.5 Hours Each

100MCQs Each

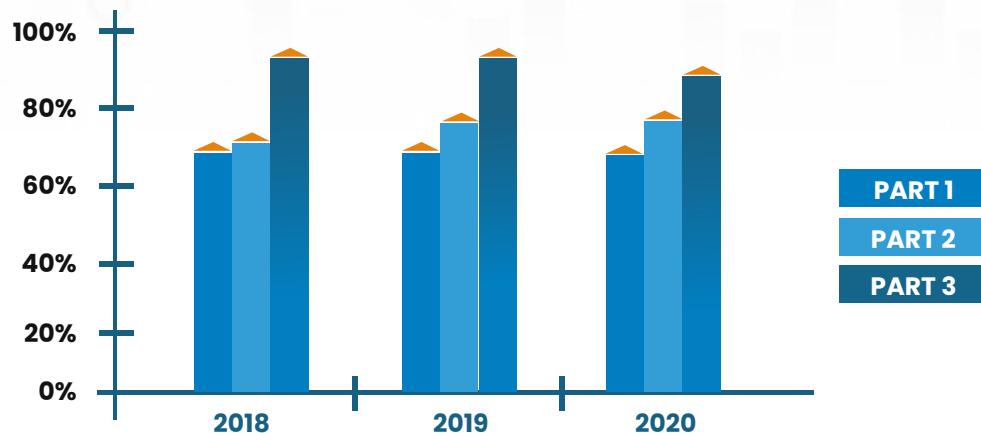

The test is administered at Prometric testing centres, which are located in the US and internationally.

There are no education or experience requirements you need to meet to take the EA exam. You should clear all three parts within one year, while you have two years to clear the examinations if required.

Once you clear an examination part, that credit is useful for a two-year carryover span. After two years, the credit lapses and you'll have to re-take that part if you have not cleared the remaining examination parts

EA EXAM PASS RATES

Part	2017–2018	2018–2019	2019–2020
Part 1: Individuals	61%	61%	61%
Part 2: Businesses	65%	69%	70%
Part 3: Representation, Practices and Procedures	86%	86%	81%
